THE MISSION

To give independent artists the infrastructure, tools, and education they have always deserved — and to return 90 cents of every dollar generated back to the artists who earn it. Not as a business strategy. As a value system.

01

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

THE OPERATING SYSTEM FOR independent music.

Music Habitat is the all-in-one operating system for the independent music ecosystem, connecting artists, venues, fans, and private clients through one intelligent, AI-powered platform. Its flagship service, StageBid™, is the first platform to combine booking, ticketing, payments, fan engagement, and — critically — direct patron communication for venues, all in one place.

Founded by Brandon Beard, Music Habitat launches in New Orleans in September 2026, backed by The Habitat Sessions — a live weekly show premiering May 7, 2026 that builds community, venue relationships, and artist partnerships on the ground for four months before the platform opens. The company is seeking $250,000 in seed funding to complete platform development, execute the New Orleans market launch, and fund operations through 12 months of proven traction.

“I want to build something that helps people take care of their families without having to make it, without signing their life away. At our core, we want to do special things for others.”

— BRANDON BEARD, FOUNDER & CEO

02

COMPANY OVERVIEW

A COMPANY BUILT FROM the inside.

ABOUT MUSIC HABITAT

Music Habitat is a technology company building the operating system for the independent live music ecosystem. Headquartered in Kalispell, Montana, with deep Louisiana roots, it was founded by Brandon Beard — an entrepreneur whose personal history with music, the radio industry, and the realities faced by independent artists drove him to build the platform he wished had existed.

Its flagship service, StageBid™, is an AI-powered booking, ticketing, and revenue operating system designed to give independent artists enterprise-level infrastructure, give venues a direct line to their own patrons, and connect fans and private clients to live music in ways no existing platform enables.

THE FOUNDING STORY

Brandon Beard grew up in a musical family. His father was a traveling Christian worship pastor who spent his life chasing a breakthrough in music that never came. Not for lack of talent — for lack of infrastructure, tools, and a platform built to serve independent artists rather than exploit them.

After building businesses and working in the radio industry, Brandon saw firsthand how the industry fails the vast majority of artists. The talent is everywhere. The infrastructure is not. Music Habitat exists to change that.

“Musicians end up out late, burning out, working for nothing. With that comes the exhaustion, the depression, the things people reach for when the dream feels too far away.”

MISSION + VALUES

90% Back to Artists

Every dollar generated flows primarily to the artists who earn it.

Education First

Knowledge is infrastructure; we teach what the industry refuses to.

Community over Extraction

We build relationships, not dependency.

Belief + Infrastructure

Artists need both to build careers on their own terms.

THE PROBLEM

The live music industry generates over $35 billion annually in the United States. The artists, venues, and fans who create that value receive a fraction of what they deserve. The infrastructure that exists was built to serve the top one percent — the signed, the managed, the endorsed. The other ninety-nine percent are left to figure it out alone.

The Artist Problem

Independent artists have no professional infrastructure. They book through cold DMs, manage payments through Venmo and handshakes, promote through algorithms they don't control, and sign contracts they don't understand because nobody taught them — working jobs they hate to pay for a dream they can't afford to chase full-time.

The Venue Problem

Venues have no direct line to their own patrons. New Orleans has over 800 bars and venues, ~300–400 with regular live music. Every one relies on algorithms they don't control to fill rooms. When they need a Friday night filled, they can't reach the people who were there last Saturday. The fan relationship belongs to Meta and Google — not the venue.

The Fan Problem

Fans can't discover what's happening in their own cities. They travel to music destinations, fall in love with an artist, go home — and lose the connection entirely because no platform follows them. Discovery dies at the city limits.

The Education Gap

Nobody teaches artists the business of music. Royalties, licensing, contracts, pricing, branding, financial literacy — the industry profits from artists who don't know what they don't know. This gap destroys careers that should have thrived.

04

THE SOLUTION · STAGEBID™

ONE PLATFORM. Everything they need.

StageBid™ is the AI-powered operating system that replaces every fragmented tool independent artists and venues currently use. Booking, ticketing, payments, fan engagement, education, and — most critically — a direct patron communication channel for venues. All in one platform.

THE GROWTH FLYWHEEL

Each step compounds the next. The flywheel is what turns one city into a national platform.

05

SERVICES + VALUE PROPOSITION

★ LEAN LAUNCH · AGGRESSIVE SCALE

Year 1 is a deliberately lean New Orleans launch — 250 venues and 20,000 artists on a $1.4M expense base, $600K net positive. Year 2 expands into adjacent music cities (Nashville, Austin, Atlanta, Memphis) as the four-sided flywheel catches. Year 3 reaches national scale on the same unit economics validated in launch.

08

3-YEAR FINANCIAL PROJECTIONS

LEAN TO LAUNCH, built to scale.

Year 1 is anchored entirely in New Orleans — 250 venues, 20,000 artists, 35,000 active fans — with $2.0M of gross revenue across the eight streams and $600K net positive on disciplined operations. Year 2 expands into Nashville, Austin, Atlanta, and Memphis, growing revenue 6× to $12.0M. Year 3 scales nationally to $35.0M as the four-sided flywheel reaches its operating cadence.

 Services with large-scale potential beyond core platform operations.*

Year 1 payroll: 10-person team — founder-equity executive group, CTO + Sr. Architect, two UX UI designers, AI workflow architect, plus early operational hires — with most senior compensation deferred to equity. Year 2 scales headcount to 22 as the four-city expansion launches; Year 3 reaches 50 for national scale.

09

GO-TO-MARKET STRATEGY

THE HABITAT SESSIONS as launch engine.

The Habitat Sessions is a live weekly show premiering May 7, 2026 on StreamYard, YouTube, and Facebook Live. Every episode features an independent artist interview, a venue spotlight filmed by Kim Russell on location, and an education segment teaching one real music-business topic per week. It is not just content — it is the community engine that builds the platform’s audience for four months before launch, and sustains it after.

PHASE 1 · LAUNCH

New Orleans · Sept 2026

250 active venue subscribers.
20,000 Louisiana artists.
50,000+ national listings pre-populated. Kim on the ground; Habitat Sessions airing weekly.

PHASE 2 · EXPAND

Music Cities

Convert listed venues in Nashville, Austin, Atlanta, Memphis already seeing StageBid™ traffic. Activate private booking marketplace.

PHASE 3 · SCALE

National

4,500+ venues, 200,000+ artists. Enterprise licensing for venue chains. Full ad network. Series A on proven unit economics.

12-MONTH MILESTONES

COMPETITIVE LANDSCAPE

NO ONE CONNECTS all four sides.

No existing platform combines booking, ticketing, payments, AI matching, fan engagement, patron communication, and education in a single ecosystem. Competitors address one or two sides. StageBid™ addresses all four.

PLATFORM	FOCUS	LIMITATIONS	STAGEBID™ ADVANTAGE
GigSalad	Private event marketplace	No venue tools, no ticketing, no AI, no fan layer	Full ecosystem OS vs. single-sided marketplace
GigMor	Artist-venue matching	Limited booking infrastructure, no payments, no analytics	End-to-end workflows with wallet, calendar, AI
Sonicbids	EPK + festival submissions	Passive submission model, no live booking OS	Active AI-driven bidding vs. passive submissions
Eventbrite	Event ticketing + discovery	No artist-venue matching, no booking tools, high fees	Proprietary Ticketing API Routing™ + booking in one
Bandsintown / Songkick	Concert discovery + fan alerts	Fan-only layer, no operational tools	Connects all four sides: artists, venues, fans, public

OUR COMPETITIVE MOATS

Patron Communication Suite	No competitor gives venues ownership of their fan relationship. After two years of patron data on StageBid™, a venue never leaves.
National Listing Database	50,000+ venues listed from Day 1. Fans never delete the app. No cold-start problem.
Ticketing API Routing™	Proprietary infrastructure syncing all ticketing vendors automatically — a technical barrier competitors can't quickly replicate.
Data Network Effects	Every booking, ticket sale, and fan interaction makes the AI smarter. The platform compounds in value the more it's used.
The Habitat Sessions	A live weekly show building community and trust before the platform launches. No competitor has a media arm.
Freemium Artist Supply	The free tier drives massive supply-side adoption — 10,000 artists with zero friction from Day 1.
90% Artist Commitment	Not a feature — a values statement that creates deep loyalty from the artists who power the ecosystem.

11

THE TEAM

LEAN, FOCUSED, on the ground.

Music Habitat is led by a complete executive team with complementary skills across technology, artistry, market development, brand, operations, artist relations, and production — supported by a board with deep industry and capital-markets experience. Seed-round deployment scales the operating team from 8 to 18 across Year 2.

12

THE ASK · $250,000 SEED ROUND

A FOCUSED, lean ask.

Music Habitat is seeking $250,000 in seed funding to complete platform development, execute the New Orleans market launch, and fund operations through 12 months of proven traction — built to deliver maximum impact before a Series A raise.

USE OF FUNDS

R&D · Platform + AI	$75,000	30%	Platform development, AI booking engine, Ticketing API Routing Technology™ build-out, UI/UX, core product engineering.
Launch · New Orleans	$75,000	30%	Venue onboarding, artist recruitment, Habitat Sessions production, local marketing, community partnerships.
Operations	$100,000	40%	Infrastructure hosting, legal/compliance, partial team salaries, tools, payment processing, day-to-day costs.

WHAT $250K ACHIEVES IN 12 MONTHS

- ♦ A fully operational StageBid™ platform live in New Orleans
- ♦ 250 active venue subscribers generating $600K in annual subscription revenue
- ♦ 10,000 artists onboarded with free and paid tiers active
- ♦ 50,000+ national venue listings driving retention and inbound demand
- ♦ The Habitat Sessions airing weekly with growing audience
- ♦ First transaction revenue across bookings, ticketing, and private gigs
- ♦ Proven unit economics and a New Orleans case study ready for Series A

THE INVESTOR CASE IN ONE PARAGRAPH

You are investing in the infrastructure layer that independent music has always needed and never had. The market is $35 billion. The first-year target is conservative enough to be fully defensible and ambitious enough to matter. The team is on the ground. The show is already airing. The venue relationships are already being built. The platform differentiator — patron communication — creates a moat that compounds every month.

This is not a bet on an idea. It is a bet on a platform already in motion.
